

Alex out to trump dad

CRICKET and rugby are the twin passions of Drummoyne teenager Alex Logan.

The talented 16-year-old is one of the youngest players in the first 11 at Trinity College, Summer Hill, and played Green Shield with Sydney University this year.

He also trained with the grade team.

His rugby union achievements include making the 16as side at Trinity and playing for West Harbour's club and rep side.

If he had to chose just one sport, cricket would win – but narrowly. His highlight so far was helping his school to victory with an 89-not out performance against Cranbrook last year.

"I opened the batting and then batted the whole innings to chase down the runs," he said.

Alex has a friendly rivalry with his dad, Phil, who is chairman of cricket selectors at Sydney Uni.

"My dad went to Trinity and he was pretty successful in cricket," he said. "I'm ticking off his milestones at Trinity and hopefully I can tick off the milestones that he had at Sydney Uni."

He now has his hands full with rugby. "I have a game every Saturday morning for Trinity and then a game in the afternoon for West Harbour and this Sunday I have to have a rep trial so I have three games," he said. "I'll have plenty of bruises and scratches at the end of the weekend."
